

Email Address Identifier Software, Method, and System

Abstract

A system and method for users to determine the email addresses of persons whose data used to develop email addresses and email server address is known. The system generates email address guesses and uses the returned mail feature of the person's email server to test these email address possibilities until a successful address is found. The system sends the desired email message, and provides the successful address and a copy of the sent email to the user.